1-The article needs English editing and methodology. Statistical tests are needed to judge the results. It was better to determine whether the observed differences in drug efficacy compared to the control group were statistically significant. I think it is better to consult a statistician in this case.

2-Explain more about how to assess the size of the liver and spleen, please add references...

2-It is also better to use higher resolution images.

3-Add at least one reference for the Materials and Methods section

4-What were the criteria for selecting the control group?

5-Please, provide the inclusion and exclusion criteria used to select mice to this study.

6-How is the amount of bile duct materials and enzymes measured?

7-The 'Discussion' section is only literature survey and authors have not discussed their own results in the context of what is already reported. This section should be rewritten.

Editor's comment:

Get professional copyediting from ENAGO or Editage [keep all corrections in track changes (language as well as editorial and reviewers) and paste the certificate in the revised word file] or ask Veterinary World in answer letter for copyediting service (with extra payment) as your manuscript needs extensive copyediting.

Before we send the excel data and do payment, we would like to ask some questions below.

Can we:

Current keywords: Goat bile, suppressive effect, splenomegaly, hepatomegaly, blood biochemistryNew keywords: Goat bile, suppressive effect, malaria, splenomegaly, hepatomegaly, blood biochemistry2. Change the title to the previous one: SUPPRESSIVE EFFECT OF GOAT BILE AGAINST Plasmodium berghei INFECTION IN MICE

3. add a co-author? because our university asked to add an author of national or international author for academic reasons. If it is agreed, then we will send the name of the author as soon as possible.

Dear Heny Arwati,

1. We will add the keyword as per your suggestion.

2. Against word is not appropriate as it is the infection and not the organism. So, "against" word will be not as per standard English.

3. Sorry!! We can not add any co-author.

Dear Dr. Heny Arwati,

You did some corrections with track changes and some corrections in the comment boxes!!! There is no need to put the abbreviation TUDCA and DCA as it is used only once in the text part and there is no need of the abbreviation when it is used only once in the text part. Some corrections are not as per standard English so, we will correct those at our end.

We know that caption is with the figure. We always remove (when the author does not remove it) it before the PDF production.

No action is needed from your side at this time. We will provide the PDF proof to you as soon as possible. You have to do the remaining corrections in the PDF.

Dear Editor/Publisher,

Thank you for sending us the Pdf file of our manuscript for the correction.

Herewith, we are sending the corrected file, and the explanation of the correction is below:

1. AQ 1 and AQ2: We agree not to abbreviate gallbladder as GB. Therefore, in Abstract: (GB) is erased, then change GB to “goat bile (GB)”.
2. AQ3: We agree to change “amphiphatic” to “amphipathic”

3. AQ4: We agree to change “Different insignificantly” with “non-significantly different”. There are 3 changes relate to this term: in Table 2, Figure 3 and Figure 4.

4. Materials and Methods: Suppressive test

There are two corrections:

- N050 is changed to NOR50
- Werecalculated: should be written with space between were and calculate: were calculated

5. Results: Splenomegaly and hepatomegaly

It is written, “were not insignificantly different”. The correct sentence should be: “were not significantly different”.

6. Reference number 34.

We have sent the revision, but it still has not changed. Can't we change the reference?

If it is possible to change, kindly please change reference number 34 to:

Raman, S., Rout, N., Dash, K., Das, SC and Senapati, U. (2018). Acute Kidney & Hepatic Injury Following Fish Bile Ingestion- Two Case Reports. Sch. J. App. Med. Sci 6(9): 3247-3250

We hope this revision can make the manuscript better and correct.

Your kind attention is highly appreciated.

On behalf of all authors

Henry

Dear Editor/Publisher.

I have read carefully the Pdf file that has been published.

1). I found one mistake in the Discussion, especially in this sentence:

"The latter mice showed enzyme activities in the normal range [18]".

The mistake is on the number 18 of the reference, it should be 19.

2). If it is still possible to revise, then could you please revise also the keywords:

It is written: blood biochemistry, goat bile, hepatomegaly, malaria, splenomegaly, suppressive effect.

I am thinking it is better if written: blood biochemistry, goat bile, malaria, hepatomegaly, splenomegaly, suppressive effect.

I am sorry if I was not careful when corrected the file before published.

Thank you very much for the revision.

Best regards,

Heny.

Dear Editor/Publisher,

Yes, I have checked the Pdf file on all websites, except LinkedIn. I could not open it because some went wrong.

The article in all of the webs that I could open has been revised.

Especially on the reference numbers 18 has been changed to 19, but not the keyword.

It is no problem.

Thank you very much for the revision and for publishing the article.

Best regards,
On behalf of all authors

Heny
